South-Carolina GAZETTE.

THE

From SATURDAY March 24, to SATURDAY March 31, 1764.

Charles-Town, March 31, 1764.

THE Printer of this Gazette, having carried on his buſineſs to great diſadvantage for ſome time paſt, for want of A PROPER ASSISTANT, which has not only prevented him collecting his dues, but alſo occaſioned irregular publications; his ſtock of paper for the gazette being exhauſted; and being determined to have all his affairs ſettled by the 1ſt of July next;

THINKS this the fitteſt opportunity to take, and make known to the public, a reſolution to diſcontinue the publication of this paper from the 1ſt of April (to which day his books will be cloſed) to the 1ſt of July next.

AND, as this reſolution is taken purpoſely to ſettle his affairs, and to enable him to carry on his buſineſs on a more extenſive and uſeful plan for the future; he entreats all perſons indebted to him, to diſcharge what they ſo owe, or at leaſt ſettle with him, by the firſt day of June; which he hopes they will do without requiring any other notice, eſpecially thoſe who have been an immoderate time in arrear.

At the ſame time, as he has the moſt grateful ſenſe of every favour that has been conferred upon him, he takes this public method of returning his moſt hearty thanks to all his friends and good cuſtomers for the countenance and ſupport they have afforded him through the courſe of twenty-five years that the buſineſs has been conducted here in his name; a continuance of which it ſhall always be his ſtudy to deſerve.

Such of his friends as may be diſpoſed to take in this Gazette again, from the 1ſt of July next, will please ſignify the ſame to him before the 1ſt of June (as none on his old liſt will be ſupplied without particular orders) when he hopes to be provided with a good aſſiſtant, and amply ſupplied with every requiſite for carrying on his buſineſs with more regularity and to more general ſatiſfaction than hitherto; to effect which no pains or coſt will be ſpared.

Timely notice will be given, by whom new ſubſcriptions for this paper are to be taken in, in different parts of the province; and country ſubſcribers (firſt paying up their arrears) may depend on having their papers conveyed to them in the moſt expeditious manner.

N. B. The Gazette is the only part of the buſineſs that will be diſcontinued during the interval aforeſaid: All other kinds of PRINTING WORK will be taken in and done, and BLANKS ſold—as uſual.

CHARLES-TOWN, MARCH 31.

ON the 14th inſtant the Handſome-Fellow, Will's Friend, and the Captain of the Oakfuſkees (with ten attendants) from the Upper-Creek nation, arrived at Auguſta; one of them with the Peace Flag in his hand, another with the Peace Pipe on his head, and all with the Peace Song in their mouths, ſaluting the forts as they paſſed. A few days after they gave a talk, the ſubſtance of which we hear is as follows, viz.

"That they were all great men of the nation, and as the talks they had lately been very kind, they had been for ſome time paſt doing every thing in their power to get things made ſtraight again. That they held faſt by the old talk, and intended to hold the Engliſh faſt by the hand. That things of late appeared ſo bad in the nation, that they thought further miſchief could hardly be prevented; that they then adviſed the white people to go to Penſacola, till they could get the path made ſtraight." [Fifteen Traders and Packhorſemen accordingly went off to Mobile, arrived there ſafe, and had not left that place the 5th] "and promiſed to ſend a runner to adviſe them when they might return in ſafety; that they had performed that promiſe; the white people were returned [which could not be, if they were ſtill at Mobile the 5th inſtant]" and every thing was quiet and peaceable in the nation.—That they were deſirous of returning with all poſſible diſpatch, as they had ſent Scago with a talk to the Chactahs, and expected him back about the beginning of April, when there was to be a general meeting of their headmen, and a great talk to be given amongſt them. That the Gun Merchant had deſired them to make haſte back, in order to be preſent at that talk. That this was but a ſmall talk, but they deſired it might be ſent to both the governors and the ſuperintendant. That they were in great want of goods, and deſired they might again have their old traders amongſt them. That the goods lately ſent up, were ſoon gone, and they were now deſtitute of every kind in all their towns. That there were Creek Indians to the ſouthward who expected preſents; that Mr. Galphin had told them, they ſhould have come to the late congreſs, when they would have had ſufficient, but they could not conveniently come then. That they were lately informed, by ſome traders, that preſents were left at Auguſta to be delivered them, whenever they came for them." The Handſome-Fellow then concludes the talk, by ſaying, "he was indiſpoſed at the time of the congreſs, and that, beſides, he thought it proper to ſtay in the nation to take care of the white people that were there, as he had always made it his buſineſs to ſtand by them on every occaſion."

By this, and ſome other accounts, it appears pretty clearly, that the Creeks as well inſult as injure us; that inſtead of offering the leaſt ſatisfaction for the murders and other outrages by them repeatedly committed, they at firſt ſend the moſt trifling of all talks, and now intimate, that what they hitherto have done has been by way of retaliation for ſome loſs they ſuſtained in the year 1715; to complete their impudence, they are now come avowedly to exact preſents, and as certainly perhaps to get information whether we are yet rouſed from our ſullenneſs, or in the ſame paſſive mood.—We are impatient to learn how this party of Indians will be treated; for, as a propoſal from this government, to ſtop the trade to the Creeks, has, we hear, been rejected, as dangerous and premature, becauſe it may irritate theſe Indians, the withholding preſents from them, may equally inflame their reſentment.—So far in regard to the Creeks.

From the Cherokees country we have no other advices than what were inſerted in our laſt gazette: But, it is ſaid, that the garriſon of Fort Prince George, may poſſibly ſoon be under a neceſſity of quitting that poſt for want of proviſions.

Of the Chactahs we learn no more than this, viz. That Red-Shoes and his companion, who went from hence by ſea to Mobile, in January laſt, on his return to his country, was arrived there in ſafety; but the preſents (except ſix chefs of arms) were not on the 17th inſtant, being ſent in another veſſel that went long afterwards. Meſſrs. Crooke, Mackintoſh & Jackſon at Auguſta, we hear, were commiſſioned with the king's goods there, which, at the congreſs, were allotted for that nation, upon their entering into an obligation to return the ſame forts at Savannah, and to ſhip them in a veſſel of their own to Mobile, which engagement they did not comply with: now if the preſents ſhould miſcarry, is it not to be fear'd, that the Chactahs will never believe they were ſent? and that, if the French continue to tamper with Indians, ſuch an accident in the preſent critical ſituation of affairs with the Creeks, may have very bad conſequences.

We hear, that as many ſoldiers as can be ſpared from other garriſon duty are ordered to march ſoon for Auguſta, under the command of Mr. Keuth.

Tho' ſeveral accounts have been lately received, from different quarters, aſſerting for fact, that the French King had ceded New-Orleans to the crown of Spain; that the Spaniards were to go from La Vera Cruz to take poſſeſſion of that country, and the French to retire to Hiſpaniola; yet other accounts relative to this matter, render it quite incredible.

The Druid ſloop of war is arrived at Mobile, and has taken her ſtation at the Point, to cruiſe the illicit trade that has been ſome time carried on there with the French at New-Orleans. Another ſloop, whoſe name we have not yet learnt, is alſo arrived at Penſacola.

Letters from correſpondents in the Northern colonies, obſerve, That the ſtationing men of war along the coaſts of the continent has much alarmed thoſe merchants in the ſeveral governments, who have procured to be repreſented by the New England and other aſſemblies, as a monſtrance to the lords of trade, that they would uſe their influence for a repeal of the Sugar-Act, or a reduction of the duties to one penny &c. That lieutenant-governor Hutchinſon, of Boſton, is going home on this buſineſs: That in ſaid remonſtrance, it is ſaid to be ſhewn, that the King's revenue from the annual import of 50 or 60,000 hogſhead of foreign melaſſes to the Northern parts of this continent, is now entirely loſt, in gratuities to the Cuſtom-Houſe officers; that an enforcement of the duty amounts to a prohibition, and ſo alſo, a loſs of the whole exciſe; and that a penny per gallon could be collected, and would yield a higher revenue than can otherwiſe be raiſed from the foreign trade; which, it is added, is a circulation neceſſary for conveying in London remittances for the immenſe debts they owe.—The ſame letters inform us, that thoſe colonies raiſe only a few to ceſs this year, for defence of their frontiers.—And, that the aſſembly of Rhode-Iſland have granted a charter for eſtabliſhing a college within their colony.

The laſt advices from London, to the 16th of February, are.—"That his ſerene highneſs the hereditary Prince of Brunſwick arrived in England the 13th of January; was met, on the 14th, to his royal highneſs the Princeſs Auguſta, eldeſt daughter to our moſt gracious Sovereign, and reckoned one of the moſt amiable princeſſes in the world: That this illuſtrious pair ſet out on the 25th of the ſame month, to embark for Germany, in ſome of his majeſty's yatchs, embarked the 30th, and arrived at Helvoetſluys the 2d of February, after a moſt dangerous paſſage: That during the ſhort ſtay this prince made in England, the right honourable Mr Pitt was honoured with a viſit from him, at his ſeat at Hayes, when he ſtaid with him near two hours; which diſtinguiſhed compliment to the great merit and high reputation of a ſubject ſurpaſſes any thing but his majeſty's moſt gracious teſtimony of the great and glorious ſervices of that able Britiſhman when he was obliged to reſign.—That on the 19th of December, the Elector of Saxony, ſon to the late King of Poland, died ſuddenly, not without ſtrange whiſperings about the cauſe and manner: That prince Czartoriſki, one of the candidates for the crown of Poland, is, by this death, rid of one of his moſt formidable competitors; but another has ſprung up in the perſon of Prince Xavier of Saxony.—That the parliament adjourned, on the 19th of December (after the paſſing of the Land Tax and ſeven other bills) to the 15th of January: That during this interval, Mr. Wilkes, member for Aylesbury, went over to France, which occaſioned many wagers here, laid that he would never return and great odds that he would: That the houſe of commons ſat from wedneſday morning the 18th of January to thurſday morning 9 o'clock, when a new writ was ordered to be iſſued for electing a member in the room of Mr. Wilkes, expelled; of which notice was ſent him, by expreſs, to Paris.—That Mr. Wilkes had entered his appearance to the three informations filed againſt him, viz. for the firſt publication of the North-Briton, No. 45, the re-publication of that number, and the Eſſay on Woman; and his trial, as the ſuppoſed author of the North-Briton, No. 45, was to have come on, in the court of King's-Bench, before the right honourable Lord Chief-Juſtice Mansfield on the 24th of February, but on that day was poſtponed.—That notwithſtanding the expulſion and abſence of Mr. Wilkes, political feuds had not ſubſided.—That a difference had ariſen, between Lord B—e and the duke of B——d, which engaged the general attention of the public, and from which great events ſeem to be expected, as it is ſaid to ſpring, on the part of the latter, from Engliſh principles.—That the right honourable William Pitt, Eſq; had been extremely ill of the gout, but was ſo well recovered as to attend his ſervice in parliament on the 13th of February, when a great queſtion of liberty was to have been decided in a certain great aſſembly.—That three packet-boats were appointed to ſail from Falmouth for St. Chriſtopher's, Jamaica, Penſacola, St. Auguſtine, and this part, one on the 23d of February, the ſecond on the 24th of April, and the third on the 24th of June, which are to return in courſe, ſo as to ſail about once in two months.—That his excellency Sir Jeffery Amherſt arrived at Falmouth the 24th of December laſt, in London the 27th, waited on his majeſty the 30th, and met with a moſt gracious reception.—That Admiral Rodney, and Henry Moore, Eſq; late lieutenant-governor of Jamaica, are created baronets of Great-Britain.—That his majeſty has conferred the honour of knighthood on Major Robert Fletcher, for his ſervices in the Eaſt Indies during the late war; and alſo on Capt. John Lindſay, late of the Trent man of war, (who carries his excellency James Grant, Eſq; to his government of Eaſt-Florida) as a mark of his royal favour for his ſervices at the ſiege of the Havana, &c.—That Lord William Campbell (who married Miſs Izard here) is elected knight of the ſhire of Argyll, in the room of Dougal Campbell, Eſq; now maſter of the revels in Scotland.—That more ſhips of war, and ſome regiments of foot, are ordered for America.—That the French and Dutch are both fitting out formidable ſquadrons; the former ſaid to be deſtined to chaſtiſe the Barbary pirates, the latter for the Eaſt-Indies.—That great preparations are making in Germany, for the election of a king of the Romans; and there was no likelihood of any new diſturbances in Europe, unleſs they be occaſioned by conteſts for the vacant crown of Poland.—That Mr. Charles Churchill, the celebrated modern Engliſh Poet, had not gone to France as was reported, but was ſtill in England.—That the infamous Mr. Alexander Dun, who had been charged with an intention to aſſaſſinate Mr. Wilkes in December laſt, on the 5th of February found means to make his eſcape from the King's Bench priſon, by the following ſtratagem, viz. the boy who conſtantly attended him there, in the evening of that day went to the keeper and aſked permiſſion for a box of his maſter's to be carried out of the priſon; the keeper aſſenting to it, a porter was ſent for, and a large deal box was put on his ſhoulders, in which it ſeems Mr. Dun was ſtowed; but he was retaken on the 10th.—That his excellency William Popple, Eſq; governor of Bermuda, died on ſhip-board the beginning of February, in the river, and there were many candidates for the vacant government.—That the Adventure, Capt. Heatham, a large tranſport which ſailed from hence the 25th of October laſt, foundered four days after; but the officers, ſoldiers, crew, and about 40,000 dollars ſhipped by the merchants here, were ſaved by the Benjamin's-Concluſion, Capt. Montgomery's regiment, after having been long at ſea, and in great diſtreſs, at laſt made Eyal, where ſhe ran aſhore and was loſt; but the people and effects were all ſaved, and only waited for another veſſel to carry them to England.

The ſhip Peggy, of Briſtol Capt. James MacCarthy, which ſailed from this port the 5th inſtant, laden with Rice, for Liſbon, on the 15th ſtruck upon ſome rocks about 5 leagues from the land of Bermuda, and was loſt. The people were all ſaved; and about 200 caſks of rice, but much damaged.

NEW-YORK, MARCH 5.

Extract of a letter (by laſt Albany poſt) of indubitable credit.

"Sir William Johnſon, has lately ſent out a party, conſiſting of near 200 Indians, of the well-diſpoſed nations, accompanied by ſome Rangers, and proper officers, in order to cut off the Indians of the large village of Kaneſtio; who have diſcovered the greateſt inveteracy againſt the Engliſh, and committed the firſt hoſtilities.—This party is afterwards to proceed againſt ſome Shawaneſe, and Delaware villages; and from the alacrity which our Indians have expreſſed, there is great reaſon to hope they'll meet with ſucceſs; which will ſtrike a terror into all our enemies in that country.—We hear likewiſe, there are ſeveral other parties preparing to go upon the like ſervice; which it is expected will find the deſtroyers of our back ſettlements, in ſufficient work at home, and prove the deſtruction of many of them."

BOSTON, MARCH 5.

Wedneſday ſailed from this port the ſloop Stamford, Capt. William Wimble, for New Providence, in whom went his excellency General Shirley, for his government at the Bahama-Iſlands.—At his paſſing Caſtle-William, he was ſaluted by a diſcharge of the guns there.

PHILADELAHIA, MARCH 8.

An expreſs arrived here on tueſday laſt from Fort-Pitt, by whom we have the following account.

Extract of a letter from Fort Pitt, February 22.

"The Indians have opened the campaign: On wedneſday the 22d inſtant, a corporal, four men, and two waggons, were ſent to the Hill (the Highlanders encamped on) for wood; whilſt they had laid down their arms, and were loading the carriage, a party of Indians attacked them (they ſaw ſix) firſt ſending a ſhower of arrows, and then firing their rifles; they killed one Highlander on the ſpot, took the whole ſkin off his head, ripped him open, and then took out his heart: Another Highlander was wounded in the breaſt with an arrow, he was the only man that got to his arms and fired at the Indians, which having done, they immediately ran in upon him, and he was obliged to throw himſelf over that vaſt precipice towards the Monongahela, and make his eſcape with the reſt, but much bruiſed. The corporal had ſeveral balls thro' his coat. That morning four men came in from hunting; they loſt one Royal American in the woods, and doubtleſs the ſavages have got him. It's likely ſeveral ſtraggling people on the road will fall into their hands.

Our letters mention, that the panic occaſioned by the above account, was pretty general.

NEW-YORK, MARCH 12.

Our advices from the frontiers of this province, received by way of expreſs on thurſday laſt, and by the Albany poſt poſt on ſaturday, are of as indubitable authority and credit, as the extract we gave in our laſt relating to the march of 200 Indians ſent out by Sir William Johnſon, againſt the Indian village of Kaneſtio.—Theſe advices are, That on the 2d inſtant as Sir William received an expreſs by an Indian, and a white man from the above-named Impartial, "That on the morning of the 20th of February, they had reached the main branch of the river Susquehanna, on their way eastward, when they received private advices, that a great body of Delawares, our enemies, were at a small distance, destined against some of our settlements; upon which intelligence our party immediately made all possible dispatch to surprize them, which they happily effected, by surrounding them in their encampment at the dawn of the day on the 25th. Their approach was so sudden, that our enemies could make no defence, and were made prisoners to the number of 42, with their chief Captain, Bull (an Indian) son of Teedyuscung, a person who has been in arms against the English, during all the late hostilities, having headed many parties, and discovered great inveteracy against us. Our Indians immediately bound the prisoners, and sent them under a strong escort to Sir William, where they were expected a day or two after the 3d instant. "If We trust this good beginning will be followed by some other success, and sufficiently prove the importance they are of in an Indian war, as well as the judgment of the present General, who has made use of their service.]

We are further informed from Albany, that another party of Indians (said to be about 400) in our interest, are preparing to go against our tawny colour'd enemies, as soon as the weather is somewhat more mild:—The whole set in motion by the indefatigable industry of Sir William.

BOSTON, March 12.

The legislature of New-Jersey, instead of restricting their grant to what a majority of the eastern colonies may do, as mentioned in the assembly's address, have since passed an act for raising a number of men (not exceeding 600) in the usual proportion to what may be raised for the service of the ensuing year by the government of New-York only.

PHILADELPHIA, March 15.

In a letter from Bethlehem, in Northampton county, of the 2d of March, it is said, that on the saturday before as one John Russell was hunting near Fort-Penn, he was fired on by three Indians; upon which he took to a tree, where he bravely stood three fires from each of them, returned as many, and obliged the savages to make the best of their way off.—One shot went thro' his hat; another thro' the sleeve of his coat; and a third wounded him slightly in the calf of his leg. [Russell is brother to the two lads, one of which was lately found roasted in a barn, the other supposed to be murdered, or carried off by the enemy.]

We learn from Carlisle, that on the 5th instant, there was a report there of some persons being lately killed at Anghwick by the Indians.

NEW-LONDON, March 16.

The General Assembly of this colony, (in their last session at Hartford) passed an act for raising 265 men, including officers, for the service of the ensuing year; to consist of five companies.

NEW-YORK, March 19.

The following is an extract of a letter of undoubted credit from d'Kerait, dated December 31, 1763.

"We have been lately very busy in procuring abundance of Wheat, Flour, Indian Corn, and Peafe, from the country; in which we have so far succeeded as not to be in danger of being starved out. The approach of Major Wilkins's party had very good effects, the enemy moved further off.—It's said Pondiac, and his tribe, are gone to the Mississippi; but we don't believe it: The French have been wonderfully civil this last fortnight, being ignorant of the return of the troops, in which Major Gladwin does not think proper to undeceive them, lest they should bring the Indians upon us, who might harrass us much in our present employ, that of bringing in wood for the garrison, as we are obliged to fetch it from a great distance.

"The Wiondots of Sandusky are much animated against us. They have been reinforced lately by many villains from all the nations concerned in the war; and they are the only Indians this way that abound in ammunition, the other nations being much in want of that article. They likewise plant abundance of Indian Corn, which they often sell to other nations that stand in need of it: The Ottawawa's, it's thought, must depend upon them for that article next spring."

BOSTON, March 19.

By a vote of the town, all persons, inhabitants and others, have free liberty to come into the town, and be inoculated for the Small-Pox before the 20th of April next:—But after that time the select men are desired to take such measures as have heretofore been practised for cleansing and freeing the town from infection.

It is imagined, that near 2500 people have been inoculated in town for the Small-Pox since liberty was granted, which is a little better than a week, and many more intend to go into that method, which has proved so successful in America; by which means it is thought the town will soon be clear of that distemper.

Account of the CONFERENCE:

A POEM, by C. CHURCHILL.

THIS Poem, like all the rest of our Author's Works, is written in a rich Vein of Poetry, and contains many spirited Strokes of Satire, in which the Author, like a Romish Priest, has even lashed himself, in a Dialogue between himself and a Noble Lord. The Poem opens thus:

GRACE said in Form, which Sceptics must agree,
When they are told that Grace was said by Me;
The Servants gone, to break the Scurvy Jest
On the proud Landlord, and his Thread-bare Guest;
The King gone round, my Lady too withdrawn,
My Lord, in usual Taste, began to yawn,
And loolling backward in his Elbow-chair,
With an insipid Kind of stupid Stare,
Picking his Teeth, twirling his Seals about —
CHURCHILL, You have a Poem coming out.
You've my best Wishes; but I really fear
Your Muse in general is too severe,
Her Spirit seems her Int'rest to oppose,
And, where She makes one Friend, makes twenty Foes.

The Author, in Reply, says, that he will

——— His settled Course pursue,
Because his Foes are Foes to Virtue too.

The Poet then advises him to give up Virtue for Interest.

Canst Thou dismiss the hard unfeeling Dun
Barely by saying, Thou art Virtue's Son?
Or by base blund'ring Statesmen sent to Jail,
Will MANSFIELD take this Virtue for thy Bail?
Believe it not, the Name is in Disgrace,
Virtue and TEMPLE now are out of place.

The Author, in his Answer, present a fine Picture of his former Distress, and gives a noble Instance of his Gratitude.

What Proof might do, what Hunger might effect,
What famish'd Nature, looking with Neglect
On all She once held dear, what Fear, at Strife
With fainting Virtue for the means of Life,
Might make this Coward Flesh, in love with Breath,
Shudd'ring at Pain, and shrinking back from Death,
In Treason to my Soul, descend to bear,
Trusting to Fate, I neither know, nor care.
Once, at this Hour those Wounds afresh I feel,
Which nor Prosperity nor Time can heal,
Those Wounds, which Fate severely hath decreed,
Mention'd or thought of, must for ever bleed,
Those Wounds, which humbled all that Pride of Man,
Which brings such mighty Aid to Virtue's Plan;
Once, aw'd by Fortune's most oppressive Frown,
By legal Rapine to the Earth bow'd down,
My Credit at last Gasp, my State undone,
Trembling to meet the Shock I could not shun,
Virtue gave Ground, and blank Despair prevail'd;
Sinking beneath the Storm, my Spirits fail'd,
Like PETER's Faith, till one, a Friend indeed,
May all Distress find such in Time of Need,
One kind good Man, in Act, in Word, in Thought,
By Virtue guided, and by Wisdom taught,
Image of him whom Christians should adore,
Stretch'd forth his Hand, and brought me safe to Shore.

My Lord then having urged, that Virtue is nothing but SELF is all in all, urges the Poet's private Life as an Instance.

The Answer of the Poet is very striking.

C. Ah! what, my Lord, hath private Life to do
With Things of public Nature? why to View
Would You thus cruelly those Scenes unfold,
Which, without Pain and Horror to behold,
Must speak me something more, or less than Man;
Which Friends may pardon but I never can?
Look back! a Thought which borders on Despair,
Which human Nature must, yet cannot bear.
'Tis not the Babbling of a busy World,
Where Praise and Censure are at Random hurl'd,
Which can the meanest of my Thoughts controul,
Or shake one settled Purpose of my Soul.
Free and at large might their wild Curses roam;
If All, if All, alas! were well at home.
No—'tis the Tale which angry Conscience tells,
When She with more than tragic Horror swells
Each circumstance of Guilt; when stern, but true,
She brings bad Actions forth into Review;
And, like the dread Hand-Writing on the Wall,
Bids late Remorse awake at Reason's Call,
Arm'd at all Points bids Scorpion Vengeance pass,
And to the Mind holds up Reflection's Glass,
The Mind, which starting, heave the heart-felt Groan,
And hates that Form She knows to be her own.

With one more Extract, containing, the Poet's Resolution not to change his Side, we shall conclude our Account of the Conference, referring the Reader for many other Beauties to the Work at large.

C. May I, (can worse Disgrace on Manhood fall?)
Be born a Whitehead, and baptiz'd a Paul;
May I (though to his Service deeply tied
By sacred Oaths, and now by Will allied)
With false feign'd Zeal an injur'd God defend,
And use his name for some base private End;
May I (that Thought bids double Horrors roll
O'er my sick Spirits, and unmans my Soul)
Ruin the Virtue which I held most dear,
And still must hold; may I, through abject Fear,
Betray my Friend; may to succeeding Times,
Engrav'd on Plates of Adamant, my Crimes
Stand blazing forth, whilst mark'd with envious Blot,
Each little Act of Virtue is forgot;
Of all those Evils which, to stamp Men curs'd,
Hell keeps in Store for Vengeance, may the worst
Light on my Head, and in my Day of Woe,
To make the Cup of Bitterness o'erflow,
May I be scorn'd by every Man of Worth,
Wander, like Cain, a Vagabond on Earth,
Bearing about a Hell in my own Mind,
Or be to Scotland for my Life confin'd,
If I am one amongst the many known,
Whom Shelburne fled, and Calcraft blush'd to own.
